VOL. XIX, NO. 133.

CHARLEROI, WASHINGTON CO., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1918

TWO CENTS

LIFTING OF LOCAL QUARANTINE DEFERRED UNTIL NEXT WEEK

Health Board to Meet Next Wednesday to Discuss Situation

SESSION WAS VERY INTERESTING

What is said to have been a very interesting and at times, an acrimonious session of the local board of health was held at the office of the secretary, Dr. A. O. Davis, Thursday evening. All members of the board, John O'Neil, President, Dr. A. O. Davis, secretary, William J. Evans and W. F. Hennings were present, as well as Burgess Woodward and a number of citizens of the community.

The question before the board was the lifting of the local quarantine, and the debate appeared to divert from this question at times to features in connection with the business of the board. The subject of mail matter was said to have been a very acute point of discussion in which the secretary is said to have asserted that all letters coming to him from the state board of health belonged to his personal mail, and belonged to him. This alleged attitude on the part of the secretary was denied by the president of the board, who said that such mail matter was for the consideration of the board members, who should be apprised of every important message received from the state health department, and the secretary in such a time as the present, when the entire state had been under a quarantine against the Spanish influenza. It was alleged that important mail concerning health conditions had not been given out to members of the board as promptly as it should have been, and this seemed to add considerable spice to the debate.

However, the board finally got down to the subject in hand and discussed the question of the local quarantine. One suggestion was made that hotels, clubs and other places be allowed to open under certain restrictions, but this did not seem to meet with favor on the part of the majority of the members, and after considerable discussion it was decided to defer action until next Wednesday evening, Nov. 13, at which time some action may be taken. In the meantime the health officer was directed to notify all those places closed by the quarantine that the ban would continue until further notice. The health officer served this notice early today and for the time being conditions will remain in statu quo.

In reaching this decision the board was guided largely by a message from Dr. C. B. Wood, of Monongahela, state medical officer, who advised that the board be not too hasty in lifting the quarantine, but that the suggestion from the state department of health continuing the ban for a period of seven days after the quarantine had been lifted, be followed.

The state board of health has directed the quarantine to be officially lifted on Saturday, the ninth but the action of the local board will defer the opening of places of amusement, schools, churches, as well as other places closed by this order, until the latter part of next week.

BANKS TO BE CLOSED SATURDAY EVENING

The three banks of Charleroi will not be open Saturday evening, on account of the continued quarantine against the influenza. Patrons therefore are asked to attend to their banking business, as far as possible before 3 o'clock in the afternoon. It is expected that this will be the last Saturday evening the banks will have to remain closed on account of the quarantine.

DR. VIESLET HAS ARRIVED IN FRANCE

A telegram was received by Mrs. V. P. Vieslet Wednesday evening, stating that Dr. Vieslet, now in service with the United States Army, had arrived safely overseas.

Reports Show An Increase of Cases

Fifty-one new cases of influenza, with the returns from one physician not in, were reported to Health Officer Darby this morning, this number showing quite an increase over the report of Thursday. This would indicate that danger from the malady is not yet passed in Charleroi, and that the stringent measures already being imposed must be maintained until conditions are materially better.

At the emergency hospital, now being maintained at the high school building, 51 patients are being cared for. On Thursday additional equipment was received from the Red Cross headquarters in Pittsburg, 30 cots and mattresses and 75 blankets which will give the hospital accommodations for about 70 patients. An additional nurse, Mrs. Burroughs, from Baltimore, is expected to arrive this evening, coming by way of West Newton from which point she will be brought to Charleroi by automobile.

MURDER OCCURS IN BELLE VERNON

A murder occurred in Belle Vernon last night about 11 o'clock in which Tony Gula lost his life in an altercation with Frank Amaretto. Gula was badly cut with a razor about the head and face, as well as receiving two bullet wounds from a .32 calibre revolver, one shot penetrating above the heart and the other below. Just what started the trouble is not known. Gula, who was formerly a barber, but later steward at the Moose club, with a number of companions was celebrating the peace news received a few hours previously. The party had gone to what is known as Gould's hollow, near Sedon; Seen, on the outskirts of the town, where the trouble took place. Who started the trouble, or what it was about is not known. Amaretto was armed with a razor and revolver, while Gula had a Colt .32, with which he tried to defend himself. Amaretto attacked with the razor, and slashed Gula about the head and face, breaking the blade of the razor in doing so, the pieces of which were taken from Gula's head in a physician's office a short time later. In addition to the wounds on the head he was shot twice in the body. Gula died at 4:20 o'clock this morning. Amaretto was arrested later by Chief of Police Boyd, who found the bloody razor in his possession, as well as the revolver. One other man said to have been implicated in the fight got away, and the state police are looking for him. Amaretto is now in the Belle Vernon lockup and will be taken later to Uniontown.

Batisto Antonioli

Batisto Antonioli died on Thursday at Houston Run, November 7, from influenza and pneumonia, aged 32 years. The body was brought to the Crow ley morgue, where funeral service will likely be held, with interment at Calvary on Sunday. Antonioli's wife was with him at her home at Houston. Ru

This is the second "peace" jubilee that has been held in the United States during the past six weeks, the first demonstration coming when it was reported that Germany had accepted President Wilson's peace terms.

However, it is to be hoped that when peace is actually here that some official information will be issued by the government to that effect—and in the meantime we should be prepared against another "premature" celebration.

THE NEXT CONGRESS

The Republicans will have undisputed control of the lower house of Congress for the next two years beginning with the 4th day of March next and the probabilities are they will likewise have control of the Senate. As it is they have 17 votes assured with excellent prospects to retain the Senators from Michigan and New Mexico and a possibility of another one from Idaho. Should they secure two out of these three Senators, which appears very likely at this time, they will have control of the Senate and consequently of legislation at Washington for the balance of President Wilson's term.

There will be no let-up in the war policy of the Republican party—in fact it will be speeded up, and the President given every support necessary to bring the war to a victorious conclusion if it has not been accomplished before the 4th of next March. However, there will be differences on the economic policies of the country and as the Republicans stand for protection to American industries by the laying of a proper tariff, they will endeavor to supplant the Underwood bill, which now governs the importation of foreign goods into the United States. The Senate will also have something to do with the treaty of peace which the allies will present to Germany and her co-belligerents, and which must be approved by the United States Senate.

Whether Mr. Wilson will call Congress into extra session immediately after the 4th of March next is a question. The Republicans will control the House and the Senate. The Republicans will have a chance to take the lid off some of the actions of the present Congress and investigate the expenditure of large sums of money appropriated for war purposes.

THOSE GERMAN TOYS

Was ever anything more cynically, brutally, humbly than the sending hither of a shipload of German-made toys for the Christmas gifts of American children, asks the North American weekly Review. We wonder if it was sent in token of the children murdered on the Lusitania or of the Belgium babies bayoneted in their cradles and borne about the streets thus impaled as trophies of German valor, or yet of the children of other lands to whom poisoned candies were distributed by the same gentle and child-loving Hun? The shop-keeper who would sell or the parent who would purchase a German-made toy should be scourged with whips or scorched by all the children of the land.

THE MUSH-BRAINED TYPE

Those who would deal gently with Germany are the mush-brained type which fills the cell of a wife murderer with flowers and petitions for commutation of sentence when a verdict of death is returned in case of assassination, says the Louisville Courier Journal.

The next session of Congress which officially begins on the 4th day of next March, will possibly be one of the most momentous ever held in the United States. We will have entered a period of reconstruction and the welfare of the country will depend on the character of legislation which shall be enacted into laws. In this respect the Republicans, who have already been charged with framing this legislation, will have a great responsibility.

Speaker Champ Clark, who returns to Congress by a narrow margin will be replaced by a Republican in the position which is considered second only to the President of the United States in power.

EPIDEMIC SHOWS RAPID DECLINE

Reports from Harrisburg indicate that the epidemic of influenza which has been so severe in the state for the past five weeks is declining in every section and that the quarantine is being lifted as far as possible. On Thursday there were 572 reported cases of influenza in the state, which is quite a decrease compared with the previous week. In some counties the epidemic has been almost entirely wiped out, while in others it is still in the early stages of its decline. The state health department is hopeful that the epidemic will be completely eradicated by the 15th of the month.

RECEIVE PERMISSION TO BUILD RIVER TITTLE

The Philadelphia & Cleveland Coal Company has received a Federal permit for the construction of a coal loading tittle and to drive piling at its mine, a short distance above the mouth of Mingo creek, in the Third pool. The coal to be loaded over this tittle is collected from small mines, and hauled over tracks laid some years ago by the Star Coal company.

SISTER OF CHARLEROI WOMAN DEAD IN MONESSEN

Miss Jennie Kruehl, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Kruehl died at her home in Monessen Wednesday noon from influenza. Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2 o'clock with interment to follow in the Belle Vernon cemetery. The deceased was a sister of Mrs. Harry Ray of McKean avenue.

Wedding Cake.
The wedding cake for the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ray was a masterpiece of art. It was a round cake, 12 inches in diameter, and was decorated with white frosting and red ribbon. The cake was served at the wedding reception at the Monessen Hotel.

On the River.
A man was seen in the river near the mouth of Mingo creek, in the Third pool, on Thursday. The man was seen by a fisherman who was out fishing. The man was seen to be struggling in the water, and the fisherman went to his aid. The man was rescued and taken to the shore, where he was found to be suffering from a heart attack. He died shortly after he was brought to the shore.

To Have Men Yours.
Go forth into the busy world and love it, interest yourself in its life; mingle kindly with its joys and sorrows; try what you can do for men rather than what you can make them do for you, and you will know what it is to have men yours. Better than if you were their king or master.—Brooke Herford.

Speed of Carrier Pigeons.
On fairly long journeys, say to 100 miles or more, the carrier pigeon will average a speed of from 37 to 43 miles an hour. The best horse in the world can only keep up a speed approximately to that for six or seven minutes at most. The pigeon's speed is about 33 yards a second.

Deserves Preferment.
An Ohio man has invented a door-knob that when grasped in the hand illuminates an electric bulb placed just above the keyhole. A genius such as he deserves to be rewarded with a seat in the United States senate.—Rochester Post Express.

Materials in Airplane.
Exclusive of the engine, the average airplane contains 4,326 nails, 3,377 screws, 920 steel clampings, 795 forgings, 276 turnbuckles, 65 pounds of aluminum and relative quantities of varnish, rubber, linen, wood, etc.

Should Be Surrounded by Water.
First Class Seat—"Why, Johnny Smith, your neck is simply covered with mud!" Tenderfoot—"Say, Jim, do you suppose that's what our teacher meant by a neck of land?"—Boys' Life.

Quit Your Spatterling.
To prevent an automobile spatterling mud upon pedestrians there has been invented a flexible metal ring to be attached close to a tire.

Reputation.
A man's reputation is like his shadow, which is sometimes larger and sometimes shorter than the man.—Punchstutaway Spirit.

Change While You Look.
By moving a single lever a new automobile body is converted into an open car or a two-seated vehicle.

Optimistic Thought.
The only way of all is victory.

Prevents a Double Exposure.

A practical source of failure in amateur photography can be traced to not turning the film after an exposure has been made, with the result that two images are impressed on the same film surface, says the Scientific American. Even the most thoughtful person is apt to forget to turn the film, and at times invaluable pictures are thus ruined. With a view to eliminating all possibility of double exposure, Laurence A. Hoyt of Tacoma, Wash., has invented an ingenious little device which prevents a picture from being snapped until the film has been turned. When adapted to the box type of camera it catches looks with the shutter release lever after an exposure is made, and in order to make the lever it is necessary first to turn the film. It is also possible to make the device indicate whether the film surface in position has been exposed or not by means of a window in which appears the word "Exposed" or "Unexposed," as the case may be.

Oldest Bird Known.

The oldest bird known is called the archeopteryx. This is a Greek word, which really means "ancient wing." It was an extraordinary bird. It had a long tail, not at feathers as a bird's tail is now, but like a lizard's tail, long and thick, with bones and flesh, and with feathers growing from it. It had two legs, with which it could walk or perch in the trees, but it had two other limbs like hands, which it probably used to climb about the trees instead of flying from bough to bough, as birds now do. It had a curious eye fitted with a sort of armor shield, as the reptiles have, and its beak was armed with great strong teeth. There is no such bird as this now.

A Reasonable Supposition.

The farmer alleged a freight train of the defendant company had hit one of his mules. "Now, Mr. Jones," said the attorney for the corporation to the aggrieved party, who occupied the witness stand, "will you kindly tell the court whether or not your mule was on the track, the property of the defendant, when hit by the train?" "Well, sir," replied Mr. Jones, "I didn't witness the occurrence, but I suppose things must have been about as you say. This was a pretty bright mule and I reckon if that train had run out after him in the woods which fringe their track there where he was killed he would have got behind a tree."—Macon Telegraph.

A Philippine Medicine Tree.

Between the provincial building and the Philippine schoolhouse, part of which is used as a girl's dormitory, stands the sacred tree of the Ifigaos, with a span of its branches of 300 feet. Nor is it a tree at all in the true sense, for it is a gigantic example of the baobab, which begins as a parasite vine, kills the tree on which it rises, and then hides it in its twining trunk. The Ifigaos think that when that huge tree dies they too will perish, but there is an industry, a stolidity and a stamina in that obscure race that should remove from their hearts all fear of extinction.—Christian Herald.

An Ancient Lift.

The earliest mention of a device in any way resembling the modern elevator or lift may be read in Vitruvius, who describes a hoisting machine which was invented by Archimedes. This elevator of the second century B. C., was worked by ropes which were coiled upon a winding drum by a capstan and levers. The same writer refers to another similar machine which was made to rotate by a man who walked inside the capstan. Such a primitive elevator is still in use to lift passengers and luggage from the first to the second story of a convent on Mount Sinai.

Army Eagles of Napoleon.

Before Napoleon's time it had been the custom for armies to carry huge, tawdry flags mounted on poles which, while they afforded a rallying point for their corps, also drew the enemy's fire. Napoleon revived the ancient symbol of the Caesars. The Napoleonic eagle itself was 8 inches in height and 9 inches across the wings. It stood on a brass block 3 inches square and weighed three and a half pounds. Modern colors, cumbersome as they are, are as nothing compared to the old ones, which were as difficult to hide as the big drum.

Device for the Armless.

A new device for armless men is described in the London Lancet. It is intended to enable soldiers who have lost both arms to turn over pages of books when reading, which is one of the greatest difficulties they have to contend with. It is an aluminum bar, standing on two metal legs, with a mouth pad of compressed fiber. At the other end is a rubber cap. Holding the pad in his teeth, a man with a little practice can turn over pages readily.

Not Intended to Be Accepted.

The peasants in Spain, on meeting a stranger, offer him in salutation a piece of bread they always carry about with them. Of course it is refused with thanks, and there would certainly be a great deal of astonishment—if not trouble—if it was accepted. In the same way the Mexican peasant, when he places all his worldly goods at his neighbor's disposal, but never expects him to take him at his word.

SOLDIER FINDS RELATIVE IN FRANCE

October 18 1918
Somewhere in France.

Dearest Mother:

I met Ed. Geho and you don't know how glad I was to see him. He is stationed about three miles from where I am. The other night while looking over the files, I happened to see a name and where he is stationed so I wrote him a letter, saying that there was no use of us being strangers when we were so near each other.

Well, he said when he received the letter he just thought I was somewhere in France and that he would write to me. But he was quite surprised when he opened it and found that I was here in camp. He got a pass-right away and came here to see me but when he got here I had just left as I was going out to find him. Tonight they had a trip to make down here with the truck so he offered to come. I was sitting at my desk working when the door opened and Ed walked in. He didn't have long to stay but I am going out to camp where he is tomorrow. He just received a letter from home today and he says that Bill is stationed at Washington, and he doesn't think that Ralph has left home yet. I only hope he never has to. Well, Mother dear it will be a year tomorrow morning since I left you. To me it seems like five and I suppose it seems more than that to you. But don't worry for I believe that before another year passes by we will be together.

The card is a picture of a large cathedral here in Le Mans. I have been all through it. The pipe organ in it is the largest I have ever seen. It extends from the floor to the roof in the end where you see the steeple. Some of the pipes are at least twenty feet long. The windows and altars are very beautiful and all the furniture seems to be of a very old date.

When Bill Hammit was here, he and I were all over this city. We paid two cents and two cents in U. S. money and rode all over town on the street car.

Must close and get to work. Love to all, I am thinking of you always your loving son, Private Earl H. Geho, Headquarters Group, Classification Camp. A. P. O. 762. A. E. F.

To My Mother

I think of you in the morning. When the day has just begun, at noon and in the evening. When night is coming on. My days are filled with thinking. My nights are filled with dreams. My life is one big thought of you, My mother dear. It seems.

There's a cure against getting old, an excellent and thoro one. There's nothing sensational about it; it's the best thing that can be had under the existing circumstances. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea makes you feel young and gay—take it today. 35c, Tea or Tablets. Henning's Drug Store.

NO ONE TO BLAME FOR DEATH OF GIRL

An inquest was held on Tuesday by Coroner Heffran at Coal Centre to inquire into the death of Miss Alta R. Frantz, fatally injured last Saturday night, when struck by a truck on Second street in California, the highway between California and Coal Centre. After hearing the evidence the jury found no one responsible for the accident. However a recommendation was made that the borough of California cause sidewalks to be constructed along the street at the point of the accident, so that pedestrians will not have to walk in the street.

It was clearly established from the evidence that it was a truck owned by Max Avenier a merchant of Daisytown and driven by Herman Greenstein that had hit the girl. It was also shown clearly that the driver of the truck and other occupants of the same knew nothing about striking the girl until informed later.

DREADED ENEMY OF AVIATOR

Most Expert Airman, Caught in Fog, Is Practically at Mercy of Circumstances.

Nothing connected with the history of aviation is more remarkable than the way in which the weather difficulties and dangers of a few years ago have been reduced to the level of minor inconveniences by the increased skill of aviators and especially by improvements in airplanes. It is hardly an exaggeration to say that at the present time the only serious outstanding meteorological problem of the aviator is fog.

There is no means of keeping one's bearings when flying in or over a fog, and the same is, of course, true of low-lying clouds. The compass tells which way the machine is pointing at any moment, but not the direction in which it is flying, except when traveling exactly with or against the wind. There are no landmarks in the air. Even more serious is the problem of landing in a fog. The chances are always considerable of striking dangerous obstacles, such as trees, buildings, or telegraph wires, or of alighting in bodies of water, swamps, etc. Moreover, as one veteran flyer has stated, "what is distressing to the aviator in fog is the impossibility of knowing whether he is slightly climbing or slightly descending full tilt into hills, trees or houses without time to save the situation."

PUT "BAD LUCK" IN DISCARD

When the Game of Life Is Analyzed, There Is No Such Thing to Be Found.

There is no such thing as "bad luck." The belief in it is a gross superstition. It is claimed that there is a lot of luck in poker. My observation has been that the man who wins at poker consistently is merely the best player of poker. There are some who have a "run of luck." But if the "run" lasts three minutes the opposite, "run" generally lasts equally long. If the good luck holds up for a year, the bad luck appears during the next year. Any habitual card-player, unless he is a very poor player or an unusually good one, will tell you that his winnings and losses just about counterbalance.

In poker, as in life, the final determining factor is skill. Knowledge of the game, patience, taking advantage of opportunities. If you have a premonition that you are going to fail in an undertaking you are promising yourself disaster in advance, you are merely saying to yourself: "I know I am not equal to that. I'll fall down on it sure." Dismiss the premonition. Throw away the "charms" and talismans. Get on the job.—James Hay, Jr., in McClure's Magazine.

Sign of Coincidence.

Some folk are plastered with gobs of hard luck, others have it suddenly thrust upon them, but to have it starting one in the face is enough to get anyone's "nanny." That is what happened to a jorider on the outskirts of the city last evening. He was bowling along, with a heavy foot on the gas, when suddenly there was a loud report like that of a French 75 and the diver came to a standstill. The chauffeur muttered something, then jumped out to learn which tire had blown out. Before he had done so there was a merry chuckle from the young woman seated in the automobile. She pointed a finger at a sign on the front of the building where they had come to a standstill. "Look, Billy," she called to him. The sign read, "William Hard-luck, carpenter." What Billy thought he said aloud and the maid held her ears so as to avoid registering his temperament.—New York Sun.

Elephant's Legs.

The legs of the elephant differ from those of the more familiar large animals in the fact that the ankle and the wrist—the so-called knee of the horse's foreleg—are not far above the sole of the hind foot and the forefoot—resembling man's joints in that respect—while the true knee-joint, called the "stifle" in horse, instead of being, as in horses, high up, close against the body, strongly flexed even when at rest, and obscured by the skin, is far below the body, free and obvious enough. In fact, the elephant keeps the thigh and the upper arm perpendicular, and in line with the lower segment of the limb when he is standing, so that the legs are pillarlike. But he bends the joints amply when in quick movement. The hind legs seen in action, resemble, in the proportions of thigh, foreleg and foot, and the bending at the knee and ankle, very closely those of a man walking "on all fours."

United States Admirals.

The first rear admirals in the United States navy were commissioned in 1862 when that rank was created by act of congress. David Farragut, for his valor in the Civil war, was made vice admiral in 1864, and two years later the rank of admiral in the United States navy was established for the purpose of honoring him. The grade of admiral was revived in 1890 and conferred upon George Dewey, the hero of Manila. The highest rank of American naval officers in active service was, up to a short time ago, that of rear admiral. The title of admiral was first used in France, and the first French admiral was appointed in 1294. A few years later the title was adopted by the English, and the rank of admiral of the English seas was first given to William de Leybourne by Edward I in 1297.
